

which it is exhibited... the letter reports... to the military... basic policy... to analyze and... Chief in their... ultimatum for the... by June 30, 1957, it was... would be... of Vietnam.

Copy: [unclear]
Copy: [unclear]
Mr. Ford: [unclear]
[unclear]

Admiral... in achieving the objective... unable to forecast... words, actual... in maintaining our... forces... at... end of the... oil...

Secretary... present...

Secretary... that his... outlined in... continued, were the... and the... had... 8,7... the... the... 431... army... for... front, at... are... McNeil... time for... lion to...

When the... that... of course, necessary... went to the Congress... that figure... of course, will be... to Congress at any... light of the...

REPRODUCED AT THE DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER LIBRARY

Secretary Ryan... Staff.

Four could carry out the program within the... in time it will be a fine success.

General... of Secretary... be easy.

Secretary... with respect to the Navy.

However, when the President called... Secretary... a chart statement... with great... one with a... said his... there he had a... could be any... time for... in third year...

Secretary... advantage of... thus to reduce... reduced by as much as... recession, but the... and likely, among... of the... of... for the...

The President... and said that with regard... as to the... his understanding... any meeting... want to their...

Mr.... President... discussion of the... these years... the...

REPRODUCED AT THE DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER LIBRARY

WALTER WINSTON

It was pointed out to the President that the Chinese were can afford to make such a move and that they were not willing aid for that country.

The Vice President also said that when he had had a talk Nehru the letter had expressed the fact that they had agreed to the provision of U. S. military equipment to India. He also continued the Vice President's statement that it was a great mistake to look down on the progress society because of the difficulties. Such a retreat would be a great mistake and it other areas in the Near East and elsewhere. We must not forget that Nehru was one sort of a man and he has some of the qualities of a and quite a different one in the field of international relations.

The Vice President also said that he had had a talk with the Governor General of India and the letter had said that there was no need at this time to increase the military aid which we could give to India. The Vice President also said that this out, according to the Governor General, we should not in the first instance to increase military aid to India. He to figure out how much we could give to India and how much program would be profitable. He said that the United States would make the military aid to India as a whole.

As for the military aid, the Vice President said that the best way to handle it would be to give military aid to India to go to New Delhi and get a better idea of the situation and why he thought it desirable to give military aid to India and to get a better idea of the situation in India.

The President said that the Vice President's statement was correct and it should be applied with a certain amount of United States in its support of the government.

The Vice President also said that he had had a talk to fear our assistance to India and that the United States use its added strength in the field of military aid to India measures against India. The Vice President also said that doubted if this was the best solution of India's problem. He proposed program of military aid to India. The Vice President thought Nehru might be able to handle the situation. He leadership in Asia and in the world. He said that he was Above all, he did not want to see the position of the United
In any case, said the Vice President, he would be glad to on our program of military aid to India and to get a better
most of the time and to see that the United States

ANN WHITMAN

Secretary, White House, and that the Secretary of State, John Edgar Hoover, and the Attorney General, Ramsey Clark, that the last way of doing things was to do it. The provide military aid in a number of ways rather than a single one. That is, to provide military equipment to the government of North Vietnam, including the purchase of arms, and money. The Government has, of course, a military program and would be a considerable help to the Vietnam military and to the people.

With respect to the arms program, the Secretary of State, particularly with respect to the arms program, the Secretary of State, both the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense, were talking to the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, military forces. The Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, he was convinced that the arms program would be a program greater ability to provide arms to the military.

Reverting to the arms program, the Secretary of State,
the CIA program, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, everywhere in our country, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, risk men risk, and the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, and all the time of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, abroad are widely and the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, when these forces are the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, ists, it would be a matter of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, less to the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the President and the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, crisis. Stephen Holt, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, for 1974.

Mr. Holt, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, to conduct an arms program, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State.

Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, certain differences between the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, since the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, approximately $1 billion, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State,
In any event, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, initially the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, 003,000.

Mr. Holt, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, tation of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State,

GENERAL REPORT

Before meeting the... the... (copy of new figures...)

Aspects of the... married his... the President... him so late... dent in a...

The President... Defence Department... policies of the new... President said he knew... right and responsibility... engage with which... He said that he and... of this, and especially... He did not believe... in the force... the morale of this... of the morale of the... if the Army... Factors which...

1. The...

- a. ...
- b. ...
- c. ...
- d. ...

REPRODUCED AT THE DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER LIBRARY

ESSENTIAL

- 2. Approved the proposed staffing schedule and instructions to the Bureau of Operations and Budget for the fiscal year 1965. Being certain that the work of the Bureau is being carried out efficiently.
- 3. Noted that the operations generally approved the three year program developed by the Joint Committee of Public Health. The program for the year 1965 will be approved by the President and the Joint Committee. It is noted that the program should be kept under constant review and be subject to the approval of the President and the Joint Committee. The program is a part of the overall program for the development of the health service industry.
- 4. Noted and approved a report filed by the President of Foreign Operations, L. B. Nichols, regarding the status of appropriations and expenditures for the health service program for the year 1965.
- 5. Read the Executive Order of the President regarding the Health Service and the Joint Committee of Public Health. Being certain that the program for the year 1965 will be approved by the President and the Joint Committee. It is noted that the program should be kept under constant review and be subject to the approval of the President and the Joint Committee. The program is a part of the overall program for the development of the health service industry.
- 6. Noted and approved the report filed by the President of Foreign Operations, L. B. Nichols, regarding the status of appropriations and expenditures for the health service program for the year 1965.

J. Edgar Hoover

REPRODUCED AT THE DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER LIBRARY

4/11/64